

Plotinus and the Moving Image: Neoplatonism and Film Studies

Edited by Thorsten Botz-Bornstein and Giannis Stamatellos
Brill 2016

Contents

Preface by Nathan Andersen

Introduction by the Editors

1. Thorsten Botz-Bornstein
“Cut Away Excess and Straighten the Crooked:” The Simplicity of Contemplative Cinema
2. Steve Choe
The One in Photogénie: Plotinus and Jean Epstein
3. Tony Partridge
Is the Universe Still a Work of Art that We Can Perceive in a Film?
4. Stephen Clark
Heracles, Hylas, and the Uses of Reflection
5. Giannis Stamatellos
Beyond the Moving Images: A Plotinian Reading of The Truman Show
6. Sebastian F. Moro Tornese
Plotinian Aesthetics and Cinema as a Synthesis of Visual and Sonic Arts. Being as Illumination and the Sonic Reverberation of the One and its Manifestation through Images and Music.
7. Vincenzo Lomuscio
Moving Image and Conversion: a Neo-Platonic Film Theory
8. Enrico Terrone
Character, Spectator, Film: On Cinema as a Plotinian Hierarchy
9. Daniel Regnier
Plotinus and Tarkovsky on Experience and the Transparency of Reality

10. Panayiota Vassilopoulou

Images of a Moving Self: Plotinus and Bruce Nauman

11. Michelle Phillips Buchberger

Avoiding the “Dead Thing Decorated.” Neoplatonism and Daniel Martin: Towards a Poetics of Film?

12. Cameron Barrows

The Mystical and the Beautiful: The Construction of a Plotinian Aesthetics of Film