

Christine Reeh-Peters, Stefan W. Schmidt, and Peter Weibel (eds.):

The Real of Reality: The Realist Turn in Contemporary Film Theory

Table of contents

Acknowledgements

Introduction

I. The Rise of the Real

1. The Real in Film: The Historical Real, the Optical Real, and the Material Real
Hyun Kang Kim
2. The Being of Film
Christine Reeh-Peters
3. What It Means to Imagine Imagination: The Derrida-Searle Debate and the Poetic Ontology of Film
Philip Freytag
4. Emerging Imaginations. The Relation of Film and Reality from a Literary Perspective
Karin Janker
5. Animated Visions of Reality. The Real as Experimental Aesthetic in Anca Damian's Animated Documentaries
Zsolt Gyenge
6. Pasolini's Pan-Semiology or Reality as Code
Peter Weibel

II. Experiencing the Real

7. The Cinematographic Experience: Thinking Cinema Through the Philosophy of Edmund Husserl
Hanna Trindade
8. Reality Narrated Through Time: Andrei Tarkovsky's The Mirror
Stefan W. Schmidt
9. Time and Film
Maria-Teresa Teixeira

10. Mapping Film-World Relations to Reality: A New Conceptual Cartography
Atene Mendelyte

11. The Crisis of the Time-Image. Montage in Postmodern Times
Martin Stefanov

12. Think Future Cinema – With Photofilm as Its Basis
Gusztáv Hámos

III. The Real Unsettling

13. The Bird's Eye View – Ornithology as Ontology in Hitchcock's The Birds
Markus Gabriel

14. A Rough Sketch on The Real of Terrorism —Thoughts on Christopher Nolan's Dark Knight Trilogy
Ringo Rösener

15. Providing Evidence for a Philosophical Claim: The Act of Killing and the Banality of Evil
Thomas Wartenberg

16. Jauja and Meek's Cutoff: The Parallel-American Ways of Rethinking Gilbert Simondon's Role of Aesthetics in the Configuration of Humanity
Román Domínguez Jiménez

17. Maya Deren's Claim for the 'Ritualistic' Film, or: Fusing the Sacred and the Profane for the Sake of the Real
Patricia Feise-Mahnkopp

About the authors